

LAMBORGHINI ST

Houge: A “Surprise” to Claim Lamborghini World Final Title for Prestige, WTR

Travis Houge says lessons from the 2016 Lamborghini World Final prepared his team for glory this year...

by Ryan Myrehn  November 21, 2017

Photo: Lamborghini

Wayne Taylor Racing and Prestige Performance team manager Travis Houge says lessons learned in the 2016 Lamborghini World Final had his team prepared for a championship performance this year in Imola.

Houge, however, admitted it was a “surprise” to walk away with the World Final crown, while up against a stacked field of European teams on home soil.

The result was a near-perfect trip to Italy with drivers Trent Hindman and Riccardo Agostini scoring three wins, a Lamborghini Super Trofeo North America Pro class championship, and icing the cake with the coveted overall World Final crown.

After struggling relative to their European competition last year in Valencia, where the team’s best result was a ninth-place finish for Shinya Michimi in Race 2, Prestige made closing that gap a priority throughout this year’s campaign.

From the start of the North American season at Circuit of the Americas, Houge said the focus was on turning up in Imola with a chance to win it all.