Team Antonelli Motorsport announced Riccardo Agostini as the third driver in one of the Mercedes-AMG GT3 line-up for the Italian GT Endurance.

The 24-year-old from Padova, will share the wheel with his country-fellow Alessio Rovera and the Russian Alexander Moiseev since this week's opening round in Monza (6/7 April).

With Antonelli Motorsport, the young Italian in 2015 was crowned the Carrera Cup Italia Champion, two years before Rovera claimed the one-make series' title.

In 2016 Agostini entered the Italian GT with a Lamborghini fielded by the same squad and claimed two victories, confirming as a front-runner also in 2017 taking one more win.

With Rovera and Moiseev, the Italian driver – who also has a F3 and a Lamborghini Super Trofeo North America title under his belt – completes a top crew. The name of the driver who will share the other Mercedes with Stefano Colombo and Francesca Linossi will be announced soon.
